

500 Word Essay On Honesty

Honesty is really the best policy, because it is the foundation for working properly for relationships. Not only that, it nourishes people's life in many ways. Any relation is based on truth, which is only obtained honestly. Generally, people find it hard to be honest, because integrity is very difficult to maintain.

Honesty is a good habit, in which every aspect of life always includes being truthful and trustworthy. Under this it is never included in fraud and immoral in life. It is based on trust-based ethical behavior and is free from all bad deeds.

It is a work to do something good by considering any universal goodness under any circumstance, without comprehending anybody. Honesty is the way in which we do something good for others in a selfless manner. Some people only pretend to be honest and this is the wrong way to deceive innocent people. Integrity is indeed such a quality, which reflects the good qualities of a person.

Importance of honesty

Sincerity is a good quality and a lot of importance. It is always praised in family, society and throughout the world. A person who holds the property of integrity is truly a good person. Whether a person is honest or dishonest, it relies entirely on the ethics of his family and the surrounding environment. If parents are sincere, they will surely assign it to their children genetically, otherwise it can be developed from practice, which requires patience and perseverance.

An honest person is always known for his sincerity, exactly like the sun, for his food light and unlimited energy. This is the quality that helps the person to succeed in life and gain more respect. It recognizes the moral character of a person. Unconscious people can easily gain trust and respect from others, however, they lose forever when caught.

Being dishonest is considered to be sin in all religions, however, people use it for some time gain and selfishness. Faithless people are not even believed to be hated by the people of the family and society. They do not get any sympathy or support from the good ones, even to God. They are never morally strong in their life anytime and their life is filled with sorrow. An honest person revolves around freedom in the society. Being honest means not to suffer from bad habits of others or endure bad activities. Everyone has the right to take action against injustice or wrongful behavior towards them.